Body to Lie in State Three Days Before Obsequies.

ALEXANDRA'S FUTURE HOME

Palace, But Estate Will Belong to King George.

LONDON, May 10 .- Contrary to the original intention that the body of King Edward should be quietly and privately removed from Buckingham Palace to now been decided that the removal shall be accompanied with considerable ceremonial, and the cortege will be an imposing military spectacle. The house of commons will assemble in Hall to receive the body. From the three and the Central Labor Union. the morning and repair to Westminster days during which the body will lie in state it is possible that instead of the funeral procession proceeding direct to Paddington station the casket will be borne to Westminster Abbey for the reading there of the first part of the burial service. According to this plan the service would be completed later in the day at Windsor Castle.

Services Throughout England.

All the churches throughout the United Kingdom are arranging to hold memorial services upon the day of the state funeral. It was generally believed in England it would be found after King Edward's death that Sandringham Palace had been left to the queen mother, as it was known that she loves that better in England. It is stated now, however, that while the house and grounds will hers, the estate and the shooting will be that of King George.

This is an awkward arrangement, since it will give the king only the small York cottage in which to reside unless he puts up at the house of the queen mother. The queen mother's town house will be Marlborough House, but it is safe to say that she will not spend much time in town, as she prefers to live at Sandringham or at the house which she shares with the Empress Marie in Denmark.

Alexandra's Title in Doubt.

whether Alexandra shall be known by the title of "Queen Mother" or "Dowager to be determined by the hereditary earl marshal, the Duke of Norfolk and the

It has been discovered that the first proof of King George's accession proclamation contained a serious omission The phrase "and of the British domin ons beyond the seas" was left out. It was thought at first that this omisn would necessitate a repetition of entire proclamation ceremonies, but fact was noticed by the heralds and was correctly read by them. It is admitted that the copies of the proclamaion sent to the provinces may have omitted this phrase, but as the ceremony of proclamation is officially recognized as ng confined to London, it would not affect the legality of the proceedings or necessitate any repetition thereof. Prime Minister Asquith arrived in London this morning and had an audience with the king at Marlborough House at 11:30. Sir Francis Laking the leading physician of the late king, visited the queen mother this morning. It is understood that he found her in very good health.

Horse Show to Continue.

King George sent a message to Lord ing him that the show should go on as previously arranged and that the same conditions as in 1909. A curious situation has arisen. King George thought he was the head of he navy and army. He has discovered that he is only an admiral in one branch of the service and a general in the other. As king, and head of both services, he will therefore have to nominate himself as field marshal of ing and painting in preparation for servhe army and admiral of the fleet. The city is again assuming a com eratively normal aspect. Except for the appearance of mourning emblems along the streets, the fluttering of flags at half mast and the drawn blinds a the leading clubhouses and in the gov ernment offices, a stranger visiting Lonion today would find little outward evilence of the momentous occurrences which have attracted the attention of the world within the past three days.

Planning Imposing Funeral.

The ordinary life of the metropolis again has fallen back to its accustomed chanare going forward for the imposing state eral which will be given to the late monarch. These arrangements are being made behind closed dcors, the chief officers of the royal household and of the cabinet shaping the various preliminaries. Thus far little of the detail has been
